A Country Girl in Beecher's Church.

At first I thought he was a farmer, he told us so much about sowing and harvesting. Then, when he talked of training roses and pruning grape-vines, I changed my mind, and concluded that he was a gardener; but soon after he described printing, and made it so plain, I decided to be a printer after all. The queerest thing about it was that he should know all the folks at Crosscut Corners and be able to describe them so. When he spoke of people who think that everything they have is just the nicest and best going, I thought of Huddy Tucker; and when he described those who believed they are in a state of perfection, and can't do wrong, I knew he must mean Deacon Pettigrew. I was so much interested in all he had to say, I did not think of any one else except one when my thoughts flew to Joel. I so longed to have him there beside me! For I wanted Joel to love Sunday; and I am sure he never will unless he sees, as I have, how beautiful it can be made, and what a good, happy, cheerful thing such religion as Mr. Beecher's is. The congregation looked so interested, so eager to hear all he had to say, I do believe they would have staid all night, if he had chosen to go on preaching. I did not notice a single girl chewing caraway seed, or a single boy using his jack-knife on the back of a pew. Deacon Spicer, eighty-five years old, always goes to sleep and snoring between our parson's Hymn's "Fidelity," and "Sixthly," but the old white-haired man at Mr. Beecher's looked just as wide awake as young ones, and I do believe that everybody went away feeling better and kinder, and more resolved to lead good, true lives than when they came.—Independent.

WHAT IS CONSCIENCE.—The very last page Theodore Parker ever wrote tells the child's story, than which he says, "no event in my life has made so deep and lasting impression. A little boy in petticoats, in my fourth year, my father sent me from the field home. A spotted tortoise, in shallow water, at the foot of a rhodora caught my sight, and I lifted my stick to strike it when a voice said it is wrong. I stood with lifted stick in wonder at the new emotion, till rhodora and tortoise vanished from my sight. I hastened home and asked my mother what it was that told me it was wrong. Wiping a tear with her apron, and taking me in her arms, she said 'some men call it the voice of God in the soul of man. If you listen to it and obey it, then it will speak clearer, and always guide you right.'—But if you turn a deaf ear or disobey, then it will fade out, little by little, and leave you in the dark without guide."
